Snow fun

Last week's snowstorm produced ideal sledding conditions in Wilmington. Jeff Gardner found the snow at Town Park to be anything but tough sledding.

Congressional race

Barrett to run, Miceli stays put

A busy week of political leap-frogging has closed with an announcement by State Rep. Jim Miceli that he will not run for Congress.

The political action began last week when U.S. Senator Paul Tsongas announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election. Congressman Ed Markey, of the Seventh Congressional District, quickly announced that he would seek Tsongas' Senate seat. This opened a flurry of speculation and announcements on a candidates for Markey's seat.

State Rep. Michael Barrett of Reading announced on Saturday that he would run for the Congressional seat. Barrett, a liberal Democrat whose present district includes Reading, North Reading and Precinct Three of Wilmington, has been in the Massachusetts House of Representatives since 1978. He has been a leader in an effort for rules reform.

With Barrett's announcement, the spotlight shifted to Jim Miceli. He is considered more moderate than Barrett, although he is also a Democrat pushing for rules reform. He was first elected to the House in 1977, and now represents Tewksbury and five of Wilmington's six precincts.

While Miceli weighed his decision, other local politicians were preparing to run for his seat, representing the Twentieth Middlesex District. Rocco DePasquale, already a candidate for re-election to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, said that if Miceli ran for Congress, he would run for Miceli's seat. In Tewksbury, Paul Sullivan, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, was also ready to run. Sullivan, who lost to Miceli in 1980, has another year in his term on the Board of Selectmen.

Miceli, though, has decided to stay put. Stressing family considerations, Miceli has issued a statement reaffirming his candidacy for re-election to the Massachusetts House of Representatives. His statement appears on Page 4 of this issue.

Meanwhile, three people have announced their intentions to run for Rep. Barrett's seat. In North Reading, Selectman Nick O'Brien and Moderator Steve O'Leary, both Democrats, have announced. Also considering a run is a Republican from Reading, David Leavitt.

Planning Board refuses comment on Mancini restaurant proposal

The Wilmington Planning Board has refused to comment on the appeal of Mancini's Restaurant regarding its proposed enlargement. The appeal board several weeks ago referred questions of zoning to the planning board for comment.

Mancini is proposing a building which would encompass the present limited service restaurant and the former Wilmington Automatic Transmission building. The purpose is to have a general service restaurant capable of seating more than one hundred diners. Under the provisions of Wilmington zoning by-laws a restaurant capable of seating more than 100 patrons can obtain a license to serve liquor to those patrons.

The restaurant is now in a General Business zone. In effect, members of the planning board commented last night, it is a High Density enlargement. High Density zoning has a special ruling for parking of automobiles.

The consensus of the planning board members was to leave the questions of zoning to the discretion of the appeal board and ask their own questions when it came to the examination of a parking plan, which must be submitted in connection with the proposed use. The parking plan, the members said, would probably be approved provided it was substantially not detrimental to the area.

Local politics very quiet

The flurry of activity in state and federal politics has not carried down to the local level. Two selectmen are up for re-election this year in Wilmington, and as yet they are unopposed. Only one of two school committee members has taken out nomination papers.

Selectmen Rocco DePasquale and James Stewart have both taken out nomination papers, as has School Committee member Bridget Zukas. School Committeeman Philip Fenton has not taken out papers. Neither have other office holders whose seats are up for election, Moderator Michael Cairn, and Wilmington Redevelopment Authority members Carl Backman and Nicki Johnson.

One person, Robert Woods, had taken out nomination papers for selectman, but he returned them.

The town election will be held on Sat., April 21. The last day to take out nomination papers is March 7, and all papers must be turned in to the town clerk by March 9. The last day to withdraw from the race is March 24.

The annual town meeting will be held on Sat., April 28. The last day for submission of articles for the warrant of the town meeting is Feb. 17.

1936 map

Danny Gillis and Maryanne Delaney visited the Wilmington Planning Board on Tuesday night with a 1936 map of Wilmington. The map shows Marion Street extending through all the way to Chestnut Street. Delaney seeks to build a house on land owned by her parents, near the Chestnut Street end of the street. The October special town meeting voted to put the street on the town's official map, but the Planning Board has refused to sign the plan subdividing the land. Gillis and Delaney have been meeting with the Planning Board, and a compromise may be worked out.

Financial Aid Workshop Thursday night

The Financial Aid Workshop which had been planned for January 10 and postponed due to snow will be held Thursday, January 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Wilmington High School. All seniors and their parents are urged to attend. The guest speaker will be Walter Costello of the University of Lowell. The following topics will be addressed:

- (A) Relationship of the admissions process to application for financial aid.
- (B) Estimating your eligibility for financial aid.
- (C) Types and sources of financial aid.
- (D) Steps in planning to pay for college and applying for financial aid.

During the evening the new financial aid form (F.A.F.) will be distributed. This is a key document in determining eligibility and requires the presence of parents to accurately complete all information.

On January 24 a follow-up program will be presented at the High School featuring Anthony DeLuca. Mr. DeLuca will be available that night at 7:30 to answer questions regarding the F.A.F.

The Guidance Department also would like to announce that the office of Congressman Markey is planning a financial aid workshop on February 4 at Medford High School. Further information will be available in the Wilmington guidance office next week.

Another source of information on financial aid is the Financial Aid Hotline sponsored by the Mass. Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (M.A.S.F.A.A.). The toll free number is 1-800-462-1197. It is in operation through January 31st weekdays 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

CLOCK Tock

by
THE CLOCKFOLK OF NEW ENGLAND
Wilmington

Many clocks today which are considered antiques were made in this vicinity. In fact, some of the very finest antique clocks in America were made in the Northeastern part of Massachusetts. There were clockmakers in Boston, as well as Medford, Charlestown, Salem, Ipswich, Newburyport, Lexington and Concord, to name a few. However, commercial clocks were made much closer to Wilmington. John Osgood made grandfather clocks with brass works of good quality in Andover from 1790-1795. By 1795, though, he moved to New Hampshire.

In Reading, there was a clockmaker by the name of Daniel Pratt, who worked in the 1830's thru 1850's. His wooden geared clocks are seen occasionally in our shop for repairs, in area homes, and in antique shops miles away. Jonathan Frost also made wooden works clocks in Reading at the same time. One unusual feature about the Pratt or Frost clocks is that they often had the date of manufacture printed on a label which was pasted in the cabinet. Old labels used the next year or so, often had the date crossed out with the new year inscribed. Pratt and Frost formed a partnership from 1832-1835, then each went on his own. Frost continued until about 1850, and Pratt until 1858. The business was located in Reading Square - about where Sarman's clothing store is today.

Why do clocks have pendulums?

Converse cobbler builds big shoes

For Mike Blandini, meeting stars like Larry Bird, "Magic," "Dr. J.," and Bob Lanier doesn't cause the same intake of breath and excitement that many of their fans exhibit. Why? Because Blandini has been making shoes for these basketball greats for many years, shoes which one would never find on the shelves of a local shop. He could be dubbed, appropriately, "cobbler to the stars."

Blandini's job at Converse Inc. is solving problems for people with big, wide and just plain special feet. As a special shoe designer, Blandini, from Saugus, has spent 18 of his 35 years at Converse in this capacity.

"I love this job," says Blandini. "There's never a dull moment. The challenges are ever-present — from unbelievably large sizes to special and sometimes "wierd" modifications."

For those who want to know specifics, Lanier wears one of the larger sizes Blandini makes for NBA players — 18½. Bird wears a 13½, "Magic" a 14½ triple E, and "Dr. J." a 15½ triple E with special inserts.

"For years I have been designing shoes for NBA and college players whose feet won't fit normal store sizes," says Blandini. "Larry (Bird) has been one of my clients for, oh, eight to ten years, at least since he was in college, and Lanier, well, it seems like I've been making shoes for him forever."

However, these noble NBA stars are some of Blandini's easier clients. "A while ago an order came in from Canadian basketball player who lived in Manitoba," Blandini recalls. "It was a size 17, 10 E width. When they were finished they looked like snow shoes!" He has even made men's 22s and a woman's 13 for visiting Russian basketball players.

One industry triumph came when a man named Jack Tuz requested that cushion crepe be added to the outside of his basketball shoes, rather than the inside, for greater lateral movement. Blandini had to taper the specially cemented crepe from nothing at the toe and heel to an inch in width in the middle of the shoe. The hand cut, slab molded cushions were an industry first.

Blandini also made "Dr. J." a pair of rather "Snazzy" silver basketball shoes for a television appearance a few years ago. The material — a very soft, synthetic leather.

What are the smallest shoes Blandini makes? "Well, Jimmy has pretty small feet, but Chrissy takes the cake. Her feet are only a size 7," says Blandini. He refers to tennis greats Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert-Lloyd. Connors' shoes, size 9½, are made with special inserts and a soft, synthetic leather material while Evert-Lloyd's have built-up toes to alleviate pressure on the top of her toes.

Each pair he makes, by hand, takes two to three days. "Once the last or model is made," he comments, "the hand-cutting and stitching is all that's left to do. The design is the most time consuming."

"My job is never boring. There are simply not enough hours in the day," says Blandini. "I take pride in my work and like always doing something different. And I think I provide a special service to these people."

Blandini does, as the "cobbler of the stars."

Talbot Sidelinker, retired police sgt.

L. (for Lawrence) Talbot Sidelinker died in Lake Worth, Florida on January 14 following a lingering illness. He was 77 years old and a retired sergeant of the Wilmington Police Department.

Born in Wilmington May 31, 1906, Talbot was raised in the big home beside the site which now is the Woburn Street School. His father was Thomas Sidelinker and his mother was the former Alice Swain.

A 1928 graduate of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School, he made a voyage around the world on the sailing yacht Illeruya in 1929 and sailed on merchant vessels for several years after that.

In 1934 Talbot Sidelinker became a Wilmington policeman. A tall man, with somewhat saturnine features, he was a good policeman. He had a special joy of stopping big trucks that were breaking the speed limit at 3 a.m. in Wilmington Square.

Sidelinker, in the 1950s was the man who led the town manager of Wilmington around by the nose on questions of enforcement of the Massachusetts dog law. The dog law, at that time known as Chapter 39, was not too complicated. There were those who sought to enforce it against Sidelinker because of the kennel he had at his home at the corner of Glen Road and Main Street.

Talbot Sidelinker had developed a strain of dogs, using dobermans for parent stock. He had a belief he could sell those dogs, or the rights to the use of pictures of those dogs to dog food manufacturers. Those manufacturers, Sidelinker believed, would not use pictures of collies, or some other dog, for fear of losing sales to owners of other breeds. With this special breed it was Sidelinker's belief that no particular dog owner would be offended.

There were about 40 or 50 dogs in the yard of that home during the 1950s. They were excitable, noisy animals, and some passers by would throw sticks or other objects into the kennel area to excite the dogs, sometimes at 3 a.m.

Silver Lake was about 100 yards away, and it acted as an agent for spreading the noise of those dogs, day or night. There were many complaints to the selectmen.

The selectmen told the town manager to close down that kennel. The town manager boasted, in reply, that he knew Chapter 39 like he knew the palm of his hand.

Sidelinker seemed to know Chapter 39 even better. The dogs stayed in their kennel, and he stayed in the police department, some times with angry residents giving him hard looks.

Talbot Sidelinker did not mind. He had a lot of money invested in developing that breed of dog, and he wanted a financial return. The selectmen told the town manager to go after Sidelinker because of his uniform, but that too was useless. Sidelinker kept his job and his dogs, while neighbors swore they would not reelect some of the selectmen of Wilmington.

Finally Sidelinker moved his dogs to an address on Marion Street. Still later he moved them to a piggery which was located off the end of McDonald Road, but he still kept the dogs and they were still noisy.

He finally got rid of the dogs sometime in the 1960s.

As the result of the long standing controversy with Mr. Sidelinker the selectmen had a bylaw passed, in early 1960, prohibiting any kennels in Wilmington. More than two dogs constituted a kennel.

That bylaw resulted in another controversy that went on for some years after Sidelinker retired. By that time even those who did not like the noise of a dog kennel were giving him credit for conducting a long and valiant rear guard action in protecting his dogs.

When he retired he was given quite a party, in 1964. A large portion of the town found that they were friends with L. Talbot Sidelinker.

Talbot Sidelinker is survived by his wife Eva, of Lake Worth, Florida, a brother Wilson of Wakefield and two daughters, Beverly Trow of Oakdale Road, Wilmington and Jean Knight of West Palm Beach, Florida. Eight grandchildren also survive.

Of 'blew oaks' and smallpox

Copyright 1984

by Capt. Larz Neilson

Is there such a thing as a blue oak tree?

In Massachusetts there are white oaks, black oaks and red oaks. There is even a vine called poison oak, but there are no blue oak trees.

Except in the town of Wilmington. The good people of the town recorded in 1737 the location of at least two "blew oak" trees. One was on or near the present Federal Street, and the other on Woburn Street.

The good men of the town were busy surveying (as it was done in that day) the streets, and also on "perambulating" the bounds, where there were common boundaries with Andover, or Reading, or Woburn, or Billerica or Tewksbury. Perambulating was quite a job, and like the surveying of streets, the men took note of such things as white pines, pitch pines, white oaks, black oaks and, of course, blew oaks.

The trees would be marked, with an ax.

What is now Woburn Street and Andover Street was "laid out" by the selectmen on June 30, 1737. That was only one of several times the selectmen laid out that street, which was an ancient road called the Andover Road (c. 1635-40).

No distances were recorded, nor were there any records of compass directions. The road was two rods wide, which is about 33 feet. It started at a point about 30 poles south of the house of Hezekiah Winn.

Mr. Winn was evidently not a "freeman" of Wilmington. His name does not appear in town meeting records, nor does he seem to have been a member of the church. Yet he was a member of a well known Woburn family. He was probably born in what is now Wilmington in 1705, and he died in Wilmington just before the Revolution started.

Hezekiah lived somewhere near the present Woburn Street and Eames Street, or maybe near Main Street in the southerly part of town.

Not too far distant was another man named Ebenezer Hannover, or, as, it was sometimes spelled Hanour. He lived nearer to Woburn. A road was laid out (and the vote later rescinded) from the pasture of Hezekiah's house to pass the home of Ebenezer Hannover and then "Into Ye Road Downe Into Woburne."

One could guess that Ebenezer was of German ancestry. His name appears only in connection with that road, in the old records.

The first named road, from Hezekiah's house, went past the home of Daniel Eames, the present home of Mitzi Wolfe, and then down to the Ipswich River. It crossed the Ipswich over "Jenkins" bridge. There was a place laid out, too, for the watering of horses or oxen, a legal nicety that has to be appreciated.

Joel Jenkins lived northerly of that bridge, having come up from Medford in 1708. His home was about where the Sweeney home is today, at 409 Woburn Street, but that home is not mentioned in the survey.

There was a home for a man named Nathaniel Townsend, somewhere between the bridge and the home of John Harnden (near High Street). Past the Harnden home was that of Samuel Dummer Esq., just easterly, on the small hill, from the present Harnden Tavern.

There was a "flash bridge" probably over the small stream near the Browns Crossing pumping station, and a duly laid out place for passersby to water horse or oxen. Then the highway "Extended" to the Jones home or homes. Ebenezer Jones lived where "Red" Eaton lives today, with a 200 acre farm.

Jonathan Jones (probably) lived in what is now the Eagan house, near the Andover line.

On May 19, 1738 a joint committee from Tewksbury and Wilmington "perambulated" the lines between the two towns. They started from a stake near "Sandey" pond (Silver Lake), and near Jonathan Baldwin's field, and went to "ye black oak tree" which was probably the northern bound of the Shawsheen line - the common bound between the two towns. That was one of several such surveys. No names were mentioned in the report.

But in a report of May 8, 1738, in a Billerica - Wilmington survey names are mentioned, and a "blew oak" too. Abraham Jaqueth and Ebenezer Beard did the survey for Wilmington and Simon Crosby and Jacob Walker for Billerica.

It can be guessed that the survey started near the home of A. Daniel Gillis, for there was a "Maple Tree" at "Lubbers Brook." That was the spelling of the name of that brook 250 years ago, and, some surveyors to the contrary, that is the spelling today.

Blue Oak trees, whatever they were, were quite common in those times.

Life in Wilmington in those days was not simply looking for blue oak trees, or wondering whether the Rev. James Varney was going to preach a sermon next Sunday.

Thirty people died, in the years 1737 and 1738. Of those 27 were children, and only three were adults. The total population of the town probably did not reach 600.

Whole families of children would die in a few days.

Smallpox was the probable cause. In Turkey in those days there were physicians who knew that people who had suffered from a moderate affliction of cowpox did not get smallpox. That was a fact that still had to be learned in England and its colonies.

But many times the parents did not die because, one can guess, they had been milking or otherwise handling cattle in their lifetime, and had unknowingly been infected with cowpox. Young children in the families had no such protection.

Three adults did die in Wilmington. Lydia Pearson, wife of Capt. Kendall Pearson died on July 10, 1737. Next spring it was Samuel Dummer Esq. on February 6 and Elizabeth Stearns, wife of Timothy on March 16.

The first death was a couple of years earlier. Susanna, the daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth died August 12, 1735.

Two years later it was the children of Deacon John and Mary. Mary, John, Abigail and Joshua, all between eight and three years old, died between August 1 and August 9, 1737.

There were five other deaths that year, all of children.

In February 1738 it was the Jones children, Mary, James, Elizabeth and Samuel, all of the family of Johnathan and Elizabeth.

Then in May it was the Walker children, eight deaths. Capt. Samuel and Mary Walker lived where Mrs. Alden Eames lives today on Shawsheen Avenue. Hers is the third home on that site. Samuel moved there, from his father's home across from Butters Row about 1730. Some of the children may have been born in the old house of Deacon Walker, it is to be believed.

Samuel 17, Judith 3, Johnathan 12, Nathan 10, James 16, Edward 8 months, Richard 7, and Abigail 13 died between May 16 1738 and June 27, 1738.

Others who died, all children, were Mary Beard, Jacob Beard, Abigail Carter, Mary Cram, and two children of Hezekiah and Bethya Winn, Johnathan and Hezekiah. Over five percent of the population of Wilmington had died. All but two died between August 1, 1737 and June 27, 1738.

It was a dismal record.

Pearson Tavern

The Pearson Tavern on Salem Street in North Wilmington was built by Capt. Kendall Pearson in 1737, the year his wife Lydia died of smallpox. Today it is the home of the John Ella family.

Miceli says no to Congressional bid

Rep. Jim Miceli this week announced his decision to run for reelection as state representative, foregoing a bid for Congress. He issued the following statement:

I deeply appreciate the great number of calls I have received pledging support if I were to run for the Congressional seat in this district.

During the last five days, the phone has rung incessantly with calls from supporters pledging both organizational and financial support for my candidacy for Congressman in the Seventh Congressional District.

The privilege of serving you as your Congressman is an honor I have given much thought to this past weekend.

The ability to represent you in Washington and to put forth our viewpoint on national and international affairs, while working to improve the quality of life in the district, would have given me a great deal of satisfaction.

It has been most distressing to hear politicians stumping for office propose quick-fix and ill-conceived solutions to highly sophisticated world problems.

To talk about disarmament and a nuclear freeze without discussing verification is foolhardy.

I know that these issues will be hotly debated in the upcoming Congressional election, but unfortunately, I will not be a participant.

It is with regret that I must decline this opportunity.

After discussing the situation in depth with my family, we all felt that at this time if I were successful in my pursuit of this seat, it would be most disruptive to our way of living.

My options were to either relocate our family to the Washington area or to become a weekend commuter back to the district.

With my daughter Tina still in school, neither option would be acceptable.

Therefore, at this time I am reaffirming my earlier announcement for re-election to my house seat in the Twentieth Middlesex District.

I will continue to work for Rules Reform in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Increased Local Aid and more State Assistance for the elderly will also continue to be priorities.

I look forward to representing the citizens of Tewksbury and Wilmington in the next session.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

As residents and friends of Tewksbury, the members of the Tewksbury Lions Club are very concerned about the quality of life of its citizens and the standards of the Town. In recent weeks certain situations have drawn our attention to the possibility that businesses destructive to children and degrading to all people, could eventually be established within our community.

We commend the elected officials of Tewksbury who have assumed a leadership role in considering the question of pornography, massage parlors, adult book stores and other types of businesses that pander to the basest values of the human person. We realize that people with no interest in the quality of life of our Town could establish such businesses and subsequently depart with no accountability for their negative impact on our Town and other debasing acts of behavior that are concomitant with the entrance of such businesses.

Thus, in a vote at an open meeting by the members of the Tewksbury Lions Club, we encourage a review of our Town's zoning ordinances so as to restrict pornography and its associated businesses.

We uphold strongly the Constitutional article of free speech, but we likewise support the right of citizens to establish community standards in their towns.

Tewksbury Lions Club,
Richard T. McClellan, Jr.
president

Dear Larz:

The Tewksbury Board of Selectmen wishes to publicly express its grief at the recent loss of Loella Dewing who so unselfishly served the residents of this town as a member of the School Committee for 27 years and many years as Town Historian. In recent years the town's newest most modern school was fit-tly named in her honor. The passing of Ms. Dewing has left a void in this town which shall never be filled.

On behalf of the residents of this community, the board wishes to extend its heartfelt sympathy to the members of the Dewing family.

Tewksbury Board of Selectmen

Dear Larz:

Since its inception I (and many others) had not heard a lot of good words about the Health Center's service. I want to now publicly state that during a recent personal need for medical attention I have nothing but good words to say about this subject.

I was in need of immediate medical attention and received exactly that. The immediate, professional, courteous attention I recently received was overwhelming. I was seen and cared for three consecutive days in Urgent Care and then referred to a residing physician. My problem was taken care of and I extend my gratitude to the Regional Health Center (especially the Urgent Care Center) and a certain man named David Curry - who told me I couldn't call him "Doctor" because he was a "Nurse Practitioner" - but to me he was one of the most efficient, pleasant "Doctors" I have ever met. Again, my thanks to him and the entire staff at "our" Wilmington Regional Health Center.

An appreciative 22 year resident of Wilmington
P.S. As I was waiting to be seen by the Physician I wandered outside to the main entrance and sat on the bench next to the plaque which was dedicated to Lillian Woodside and I thought to myself - "What a marvelous person she was (as I did know her) and how grateful I was that she sought to fulfill her dreams of health care here in "our" town."

'Peer Proofing' teaches kids to avoid trouble

Does your child think that the road to friendship and popularity is paved with designer jeans, Cabbage Patch Kids and 10-speed bikes? Some young people in the Greater Boston area know differently. They have participated in Camp Fire's award-winning Peer Proofing Program. Peer Proofing is a game and activity curriculum that helps kids develop positive friendships and respond confidently to negative peer pressure by introducing them to the techniques of assertiveness.

Peer Proofing was developed and written by Wilmington's Stephanie Meegan in her role as the educational consultant for the Greater Boston Council for Camp Fire. Recently, Peer Proofing was selected from over 100 entries from across the country to receive the "1983 National Camp Fire P.R.I.D.E. award." The Reader's Digest Foundation sponsored this special award which is designed to encourage and recognize outstanding programs that strive to meet the changing needs of our nation's youth.

Mrs. Meegan travelled to Philadelphia's Franklin Plaza Hotel to accept the award on behalf of the Boston Council at the National Camp Fire Congress. In her acceptance speech at the award banquet Meegan explained, "We are all concerned about such issues as: drug and alcohol abuse, premature sexual activity, cheating, shoplifting and other destructive behaviors that are aggravated by peer pressure. We need to arm our young people with assertiveness skills, self-confidence and supportive friendships if they are to survive today's complex challenges."

Peer Proofing is offered to Camp Fire boys and girls throughout the Greater Boston area. Soon it will be available to youth across the country through their local Camp Fire councils. Several area elementary and junior high schools are considering incorporating the assertiveness program in their health and social studies curriculums. Meegan pointed out, "Traditional drug and alcohol education programs can be more effective if they include specific assertive 'peer pressure survival techniques' to assist kids who really want to stay out of trouble, but do not know how to do it without jeopardizing friendships."

She believes that the Peer Proofing Program provides a supportive, positive framework for teaching children how to maintain their friendships while they are standing up for who they are and what they believe is right.

Peer Proofing can also be used as a supplement to traditional religious education programs. According to Meegan, many children learn religious values in their homes, churches and synagogues. "The next step is to teach them how to live by those values in their day-to-day experiences. Young people who have learned to be sensitively assertive, are better able to withstand negative peer pressure and act on their own personal values. Peer Proofing can help parents and religious educators apply their religious values to the practical problems and peer concerns of their children."

"Parents and teachers finally have, in Peer Proofing, an effective tool to help young people to build solid friendships and the self-confidence to withstand the eroding forces of peer pressure," explained Carol Norton, the executive director of the Greater Boston Council for Camp Fire. "We are now actively exploring new ways to reach more children with this important program through local schools, churches and civic organizations."

For more information, contact the Council for Greater Boston Camp Fire office at 482-2230.

Stephanie Meegan receives National Award from Camp Fire vice president.

Rebound hunt

Wilmington's Gail Lombard (left) and Tewksbury's Mary Rheault look up for a possible rebound in second half action Tuesday night. The Tewksbury girls took an early lead and held on to post a 58-51 Merrimack Valley Conference League victory. See story this page.

Hennessy swings Redmen past Wildcats, 58-51

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

When senior guard Sandy Hennessy makes the strings sing, Tewksbury High School's roundball girls (2-3) roll right along. That's just what coach Barry Sheehan's team did Tuesday night in grabbing a lead early in their MVC contest with Wilmington (1-4) and rolling on for a 58-51 victory at the TMHS gym.

Hennessy finished with 16 points, as she led an attack that featured some timely swinging of the ball for the best shot possible and the solid inside play of senior center Eileen Griffin, who finished with 10 points.

Griffin contributed eight rebounds and three steals to the TMHS cause, while Sandy's sister Karen chipped in with five important assists.

"When Sandy's hitting her outside shot it opens up a lot of things for us," offered Sheehan after the game.

"They started cheating to her side and we swung the ball real well," concluded the TMHS coach. The elder Hennessy (Karen's a sophomore) has snapped out of a mild shooting slump to boost what was a sagging Tewksbury attack.

Senior forward Mary Rheault helped the TMHS cause with 12 points, while senior forward Missy Riddle chipped in with eight.

The leaders for coach Doug Anderson's Wildcats were junior center Gail Lombard (12), senior tri-captains Sandra Crowley (13) and Linda Nistico (8), along with Kathy Robinson with another eight points.

The Redmen led at each quarter break, 12-8, 29-18 and 43-34. Wilmington did manage to chop the lead down to eight twice at 49-41 (4:52, fourth quarter) and 53-45 (2:49), but each time Sandy and her mates swung the ball around the perimeter nicely for just the right shot.

Coach Don Clampa's junior varsity girls whipped Wilmington, 35-19 to up their slate to 4-2. Elaine Hill and Michelle Catalano, a pair of junior varsity products, both made varsity appearances Tuesday night and might be about ready to contribute to the big club.

Sandy spark

The shooting of senior guard Sandy Hennessy opened up the Tewksbury offense in Tuesday night's win. Sandy finished with 16 points.

Redmen get aggressive, burn Wildcats, 69-49

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

When Wilmington High School junior forward Brian Moon sank a corner jumper at the first half buzzer to give his team a 33-31 halftime lead, it was shake your head time for Tewksbury coach Bob Melillo.

The Redmen (1-4), losers of a pair of recent tough games to Methuen and Dracut, were not playing well, that is to say aggressively, as the 0-4 Wildcats were playing layup games with a wilting Tewksbury press.

Tewksbury's move to take charge was obvious. Simply play aggressively and take the ball to the Wildcats' inexperienced big people. After junior 6'7 center Steve Sinclair picked up his third foul with the score tied at 33-33 (6:46, third quarter), the Redmen went with a frontline of senior standout Dave Whitney along with junior bangers Brian Dick and Mike Bosia.

That lineup paid off, as Whitney took it to the bucket while Dick and Bosia banged away at both backboards. Three Whitney hoops, a Dick baseline drive and offensive rebound bucket later had the Redmen on top and the Wildcats reeling at 43-35.

Whitney's driving jumper then resulted in a three point play and a 46-33 gap that was finally cut into when Dave Boudreau broke away for a layup and the lone Wilmington bucket of the quarter. Tewksbury outscored the Wildcats 19-2 in this stanza for a 50-35 lead enroute to garbage time.

Tewksbury outscored the Wildcats 19-2 in this stanza for a 50-35 lead enroute to garbage time and the 69-49 final.

Junior forward Barry Dick also contributed for the winners, helping to confuse the Cats momentarily when both he and his twin brother were on the floor, at the same time.

Bosia finished with four points, while freshman guard Tim Boudreau came up with some solid defense and five points. Senior Bob Budryk also helped the cause with five TMHS points.

For coach Jim Tildsley's scrappy Wildcats the leaders were Dennis Kelley (12), Moon (9), Mike Buckley, Eric Johnson (6) and Bill O'Donnell (4).

Gale blanket

Steve Gale puts a defensive blanket on Wilmington's Sean O'Brien Tuesday night. Gale and the Redmen rallied after a slow first half to post a 69-49 Merrimack Valley Conference win. See story above.

Basketball clinics

Young hoopsters in the boys' junior division of the WRBL are reminded that the basketball clinics will continue throughout January.

These clinics stress the fundamentals that are the basis for proper skill development. The clinics are held Saturdays from 12 to 1 p.m. at the WHS gym. Boys age nine to 11 who do not participate in the Rec League are also urged to be on hand to join these drill sessions.

Modeling - Finishing

Due to the overwhelming response for modeling - finishing in grades one through six, another class is being formed. The starting date is Friday, February 3 at 5 p.m. in the Fourth of July headquarters.

Those interested should call the Rec Office Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Cost for the three weeks is $8.00.

Discount tickets

The Wilmington Recreation Department has discount tickets for the following Florida attractions: Disney World, Six Flags Hall of Fame, Wet and Wild, Bush Gardens, Circus World, Silver Springs, Sea World, Cypress Gardens, Lion Country Safari, Miami Seaquarium and Planet Ocean.

Also available are discount tickets to the Showcase Cinemas in Woburn and Lawrence. Stop at the Recreation Office Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to pick up tickets.

Ski trip

The Recreation Department has conducted two very enjoyable and successful ski trips to Cannon and Attitash Mountains in New Hampshire. The next day trip for local teenagers and adults will be Saturday, January 28. On that day the motor coach will be traveling to Okemo, one of Vermont's most rapidly expanding and larger ski areas.

Cost for the coach and lift ticket is $26. To sign up for this trip, see Mr. Cain in the High School or call the Rec Office at 658-6512.

Co-ed volleyball

The Recreation Department's co-ed volleyball program has started. The program runs from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Thursday for 12 weeks at the North Intermediate gym. Cost is $2.00 per visit.

The action is informal, with fun being the theme of the night.

Swimming lessons

Red Cross swimming lessons begin Sunday, January 22 for ages eight through 14 at the Shawsheen Tech pool. Lessons offered are for beginners, advanced beginners, intermediate, distance, and advanced lifesaving. Standard first aid and CPR will also be offered.

The lessons are held Sunday afternoons. Family swim will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. every Sunday. Call the Rec Office for more information.

Cross country ski clinic

Middlesex Community College will host a morning and afternoon cross country ski clinic for older citizens at its Burlington campus Saturday, February 4.

The clinic, sponsored by Professional Ski Instructors of America (PSIA), United States Ski Association (USSA) and the Mary Rank Gerontology Center at Middlesex Community College, is a part of events planned for National Cross Country Ski Week at Cross Country Ski Areas of America (CCSAA formerly NSTOA). It will have a dual purpose - to introduce seniors to cross country skiing and to provide upgrading credit for PSIA instructors.

The clinic is geared for novice and beginner skiers, and covers many aspects of the sport. Not only will seniors have the opportunity to be introduced to cross country skiing with a film, a handy guide, an equipment overview and an on-snow mini-lesson in the morning or afternoon, but instructors will have a chance to gain valuable teaching tools while they get first hand experience working with Nordic PSIA-E staff teaching the seniors.

The morning session will run from 9:30 to 11:30, with the afternoon session running from 1:30 to 3:30. Pre-registration is required. The charge for seniors will be $6.00. For those who do not have equipment, equipment arrangements may be available. The charge for upgrading credit for PSIA instructors for the day long clinic will be $25.00.

Cross-country registrants should contact Elizabeth Roop at Middlesex Community College (275-8910, ext. 267). PSIA instructors should contact Jill Eyre, USSA, Brattleboro, Vt., at 802-254-6077.

times, with Brian Davis adding another theft.

Neil Penttinen, Ron Pennie, Jeff Botte, Mark Vigliotto and Mark Palmisano led the defensive action.

The final game of the day at Shawsheen Tech pitted the eighth grade team against the Woburn Boys Club, with the boys winning a low scoring game, 41-24. Eric Penttinen led the scoring with a personal season high 14 points. He also had his best game of the season under the boards, pulling down 14 rebounds. Joe McMenimen added 10 points, Danny Woods eight, Pat Nally four, Paul Maiella three and Tony DeSantis two.

Rebounding support saw McMenimen grabbing 10 and Pat Nally seven off the boards. Tim and Tom Moran and Tim Fay stole the ball at least once apiece. Kevin Ouellette and Jon Oliver anchored a fine defensive effort.

This week the boys travel to Burlington Tuesday night and return home to entertain Lynnfield Sunday afternoon. Monday its on the road again to play North Reading at the Hornets' home court.

Finding work for the handicapped

Eastern
Middlesex Industries

By JANET CONSTANTAKES

With close to 10 million persons nationwide-unemployed, finding a job today may be like looking for a needle in a haystack.

If you're handicapped, either a slow learner or mentally retarded that task may seem impossible.

However, co-ordinators at Eastern Middlesex Industries (EMI) in Stoneham don't think so. Their center at 10 Spencer St. not only provides very comprehensive workshops to train persons afflicted with such handicaps, but they have had an extremely successful job placement program with more and more mentally retarded persons entering the work field and some actually becoming self-sufficient.

The EMI center, which is run and operated by the East Middlesex Association for Retarded Citizens, provides training for citizens in Stoneham, Wakefield, Reading and Melrose for positions in electronic and mechanical assembly work, packaging, heat sealing and shrink wrapping, soldering, machine operations including industrial sanders, table saw, eyelet machine, single and multi-head drill presses, planers and grinders.

In addition the center also offers workshops for individuals to learn other skills such as silk screening, janitorial and maintenance work, kitchen operations and receptionist and copy machine training.

For employees at the center, the work is not always easy and sometimes can be difficult in that it takes a major portion of time with the results, for many clients, coming very slowly.

Although the job for EMI Director Claire T. Ghiloni may be very tiring at times, she admits it's very rewarding, and with a track record of having an over 80 percent job placement rate for her clients, the job is also something she can be very proud of.

Ghiloni said she first became interested in helping special needs persons 11 years ago when she was in high school and wanted a career in physical education.

Her own physical limitations prohibited her from entering that field, and instead she opted for special physical education and began working with the handicapped.

Later Claire, one of the main driving forces behind EMI, worked in a camp for handicapped students and in Gloucester as a special needs teacher.

She was also put in charge of EMI when the center was previously located in North Reading, and when they wanted to expand, she located the Stoneham building and they moved there two years ago.

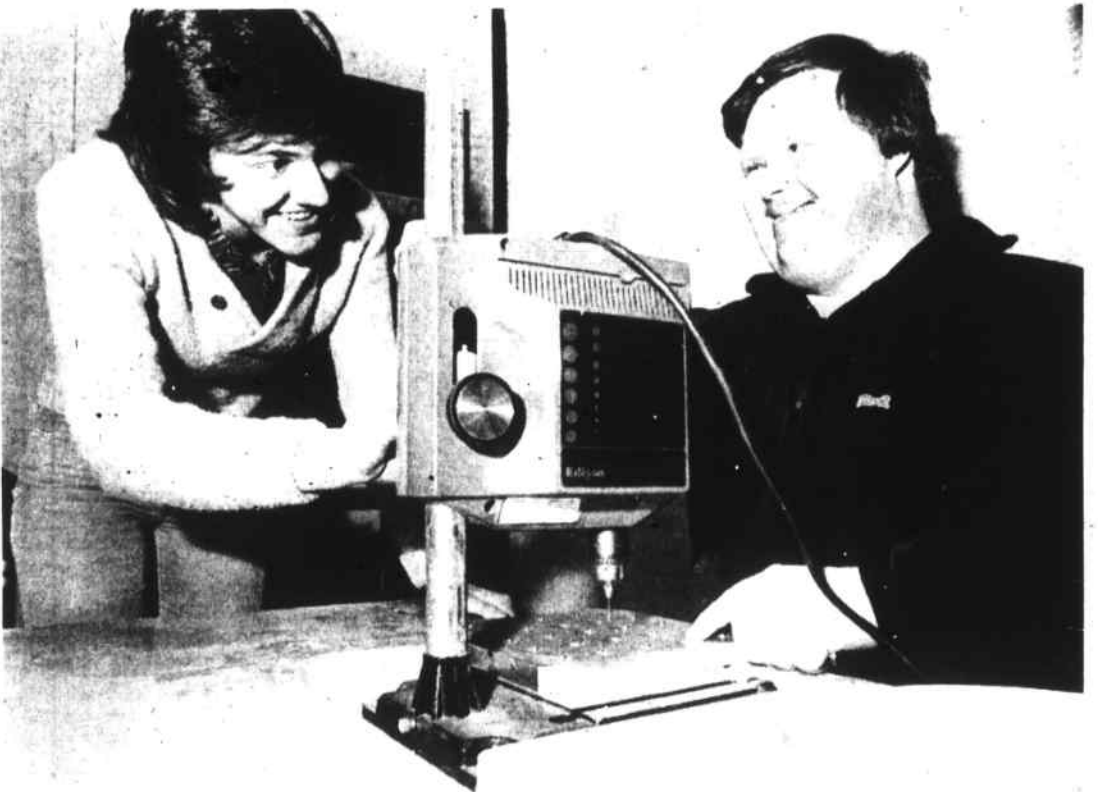

Claire said one of the reasons she was working with the handicapped was because, "I wanted to get people competing. I wanted them to feel needed," and also learn that "competition could get them a job."

While many of the goals Claire has set for herself in the field have already been reached at Middlesex Industries she admits, "There's still a few things left that we're going to prove."

If the center receives additional funding, Claire she would like to see the same job training techniques available to "the disadvantaged and undereducated" so they can become self-sufficient.

Although the training clients receive gives them skills to compete with other non-

Three employers who cared

In a recent Eastern Middlesex Industries (EMI) awards ceremony three particular employers who have helped in kicking off the program and getting the ball rolling were honored for their participation and continued support.

Anna May Arsenault, the Stoneham Town Clerk was one of them. After thanking the group for the experiences they have given her, Arsenault told them, "I've been pleased with the way students have treated me" during their training periods.

Dan Brenton, of Data Wrap electronics firm in Woburn, also received an award for his encouragement and support of EMI workers. He told them, "I'm just very pleased I'm just able to share my services. They (mentally retarded citizens) really do make very good employees."

Bill Hellison, another award recipient, led off his speech with a story of how for years and years people said that bumble bees could not fly because of their large size and weight in comparison to their small delicate wings.

He related the story to the misconceptions many have held in regard to not being able to teach mentally retarded citizens job skills much less allow them to work. "For years and years they said the retarded can't work. Well, here's proof of it," Hellison also promised to do more if he could.

Burt Harrison, another employer-supporter, also admitted, "My phone rang about two or three years ago," he said of the call asking him to join in the EMI program. He added, "I get a lot of calls like that," but for some reason, Harrison decided to get involved in this particular program and started out one of the clients with a small job. It worked out well, and he increased the number.

Harrison added in some cases the retarded worker makes a more outstanding worker than others because "they are able to recognize their strengths and their weaknesses. It keeps getting better and better."

FM TALK: If the old saying that imitation is a form of flattery is true, then this columnist should be tickled pink to see that two newspapers — one a national and the other a regional — have "talk" columns similar to this one. The national paper, USA Today, has a chit-chat column simply entitled Talk, while the other one, NY Talk, devotes its entire paper to this sort of thing, only it focuses strictly on the entertainment business. Mmmm, interesting....

Well, so much for flattery. Let's move on to the thoughts at hand: Peter Grace — he's the chairman of the board of a billion dollar corporation — recently headed a committee made up of guys just like him who were asked by the government to do a survey on government cost control. The committee concluded that if the government doesn't do something about curbing its deficit by 1990 or so, we Americans could be in store for a real shock, one that, in Grace's words, would result in our having to give up many of our freedoms. I haven't quite figured out exactly what he meant by that, but it sure as heck sounds ominous. One of the things this committee learned: that there isn't so much a problem with welfare fraud as there is with the way the welfare system is managed. Grace says that when a system is managed as poorly as this one is, costs inevitably spiral out of control. When fraud does occur, it can be a whopper: he discovered three people in Puerto Rico who had received more than one million dollars in food stamp benefits. All because of lousy governmental management of the welfare program, claims Grace.

I know one guy who isn't having a tough time managing his affairs. He's Haig Bagerdian, a first-year law student at Harvard Law School. Haig isn't likely to be in need of services from the welfare department, either. You see, Haig is an entrepreneur. He took time from his studies to devise a calendar that's called "The Men of Harvard Law School." The calendar features male Harvard law students in various degrees of undress. Even though this columnist hasn't seen the calendar, Haig insists that it's in very good taste. The whole idea of this calendar was more than to earn Haig some cash. He is upset that the movie "The Paper Chase" created an image of Harvard law students as being nothing more than nerds and grinds. Well, Haig wants everybody to know that they also enjoy things like lifting weights, running, boating and participating in wild parties. Haig, who took the photographs and designed the project from start to finish, including the distribution of the calendar, says the calendar, which sells for $6.50, is available in New England only. Its sales, according to one Harvard Square outlet I contacted, are very good. It seems fellow

Melrose-Wakefield cost down

Melrose-Wakefield Hospital has been commended by the American Hospital Association (AHA) for its efforts to monitor costs and productivity. The facility was awarded the 1983-1984 has Certificate of Recognition this week for participating in HAS-MONITREND, a management information program offered by AHA's Hospital Administrative Services Division (HAS). HAS-MONITREND is a comparative operational monitoring system that relates costs and productivity to services provided.

"Using HAS-MONITREND to assess our operational performance," according to Richard S. Quinlan, the Hospital's Executive Director, "will help us keep our costs within the new federal guidelines for Medicare reimbursement. Our participation in this program puts us in a better position to deal effectively with these and other changes occurring in third-party reimbursement procedures."

Melrose-Wakefield Hospital has been participating in HAS programs for several years. Through voluntary participation in the MONITREND program, the institution demonstrates a continuing commitment to provide high quality health care services while controlling costs and improving staff efficiency. MONITREND data is used regularly for budgeting, staffing, and service decisions.

Melrose-Wakefield Hospital is the lowest cost acute health care facility on the North Shore and has always had a tradition of providing quality care at the lowest possible cost.

preppies enjoy having their comrades displayed on their bedroom walls. That especially goes for the women from nearby colleges. Apparently this idea of Bagerdian's is going to really pay off soon, because Playgirl magazine has asked him if he'd be interested in doing a spread for them. I wonder what John Houseman would think of this!

The '84 Presidential primary elections haven't even gotten into swing yet and already one major group of Americans is apparently telling Democratic hopefuls like John Glenn and Walter Mondale to pack up their bags and go home, because as far as this group's concerned Reagan is the man who'll be in the White House come next January. This pompous group is made up of 317 chief executive officers from the 1,350 largest U.S. corporations as listed by Fortune magazine, 303 chief executives from medium-sized companies and the top executives of 202 small businesses. If it were up to them, says the Wall Street Journal, President Reagan would be reelected in November by nearly a unanimous vote. The WSJ poll of these 822 key officers revealed that roughly nine out of ten gave Reagan high marks on his economic policies. In fact, many felt that if it hadn't been for Reagan's policies, this country would not have made a recovery. One executive made the comment that Reagan must be doing well with his economic policies because you don't hear people making jokes about him. Of course, he may not be hearing any jokes, because Reagan's policies definitely favor business. Even though Reagan doesn't seem too worried about the mounting national deficit, he is at least surrounding himself with smart people who do care. Like Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker, who also received a strong vote of confidence from the top executives surveyed by the Journal.

Fortune may have its Four Hundred, but look out Savvy, the women's magazine, has its Savvy 60. That's a list of the top USA companies headed by women. In case you're curious, at the top of the heap are Estee Lauder, whose company revenues last year exceeded one billion dollars; Katherine Graham, chairwoman of the Washington Post Company, with '82 revenues around $800 million; Mary Wells Lawrence, chairwoman of Wells, Rich, Greene, Inc., with last year's revenues estimated at $527 million; Mary C. Crowley, president of Home Interiors & Gifts Inc., which had revenues in the neighborhood of $400 million last year; and Mary Hudson, chairwoman of Hudson Oil Company, which earned about $334 million in '82.

According to Savvy, women now own twenty-five percent of the small businesses in the United States, and the percentage is growing steadily. Perhaps this is why there's such a demand for female executives. According to Phyllis Tama, who owns an executive search consulting firm, the retailing, financial services, consumer goods and publishing fields are among the industries that tend not to raise the issue of gender in hiring. On the other hand, she claims, durable goods, transportation, high technology, aerospace and mineral resources industries still have a way to go to catch up.

Well, for the women who decide not to pursue a career in the corporate maze, there's always the difficult job of staying at home to raise kids. As if that isn't difficult enough, now moms have got to be concerned about purchasing a Cabbage Patch Kids doll clone! That's right. The counterfeit dolls and forms are cropping up all over the country, says the FBI, but following one major raid at a New Jersey firm, there may be less of the clones showing up at department stores. According to Stanley Birch, of Appalachian Original Artworks, of Cleveland, Ga., the company that makes the real Cabbage Patch dolls, the clones are easily identifiable. They have a smaller head and are manufactured with cheaper materials. If you grown-ups have a problem telling, Birch has the solution: ask your child. He or she will know the difference.

The Cabbage Patch doll business seems to be the right kind of investment to make, since the National Center for Health Statistics revealed recently that 1983 was a record year for births. The number of births last year approached 3.7 million, a half million more than in 1975.

I'll leave you readers with this thought from the English poet Wylan Hugh Auden:
"If equal affection cannot be,
Let the more loving one be me."
Make it a good week.

handicapped employees, Claire admitted sometimes no matter what you do, potential employers have a stigma against hiring the mentally retarded.

Claire explained how although it takes a certain amount of selling techniques to get prospective employers involved in the program, she admits there are others "who have come right out and said, 'we don't hire the mentally retarded.'"

However, the center states that the employers who do participate are all the better because they will be provided with qualified prospective employees, with careful selection taken in matching individual capabilities with positions and an on-site supervisor for training and support trainees who are eligible and registered for financial subsidies.

In fact, if anything, some potential employees are more conscientious than the average worker, and have been known on occasion to show for work on weekends and holidays, because they are doing something they enjoy as well as something they feel responsible for.

EMI Placement Specialist, Michelle Goldfarb is the second part to the success team and she explained how, in the beginning, she had misconceptions others possibly hold, about working with persons who are mentally retarded.

Goldfarb said when many of her friends were working with mentally retarded persons, as part of their college co-ops, she would ask them "how can you work with those people?"

Today she shrugs off those past thoughts and admits "they were misconceptions," citing how very nicely she has been treated by the same persons who at first may have shocked her.

Michelle first began with EMI searching out potential employers and later when the center grew she was moved to placement specialist, and now coordinates many of the center services such as internship programs, supportive work programs and competitive placement programs.

Clients are also taught the basic skills of looking for a job from filling out an application to interview techniques and follow-up calls.

Michelle also admits the learning process can be hard for potential employees. "It's just a slow process. Sometimes it can take two years before an individual says 'I'm ready,'" Goldfarb admitted.

Packaging techniques used at MCI are reviewed by Jim Henry (standing), Workshop Supervisor, and Chris Hartford of Reading.

A car kit for winter

New England is notorious for its rapidly changing weather, especially in winter. A driver may start out on a clear and bright day and end up in the midst of a snow or ice storm.

For that reason, AAA Massachusetts recommends that you carry the following items in your car:

Windshield scraper

— with long handle and brush for easy snow removal.

Can of windshield de-icing spray.

Extra windshield washer fluid (antifreeze type).

Old cardboard milk carton or plastic bottle of sand or kitty gravel.

Small snow shovel.

Trac-treds — wire mesh strips for "getting unstuck"

Wire drying spray for moisture problems.

Flares for protection — remain good indefinitely if protective coating is not penetrated.

Old blanket or coat — for extra warmth if you're stuck, for protection if you have to get out in rain or snow, to put on the ground if you have to change a tire, or to put under the wheels if you need extra traction.

Of course, no one can ever be fully prepared for a storm emergency, but there are some additional things that can help you out — boots and heavy socks, a first aid kit and some of those high energy foods that hikers use.

VA questions-answers

Q. — I have a war related injury and my kids are ready to start college. Are they entitled to any help from the VA?

A. — Perhaps. The college-age children of veterans who suffer from permanent and total service-connected disabilities may be entitled to education benefits similar to those granted veterans. The student can use this benefit for college as well as for other types of training, and can make application either through the VA directly or through the Veterans Affairs Office at school.

Q. — I now receive 100 percent service-connected disability compensation. My wife and I plan to divorce. Will she be entitled to a portion of my compensation after we divorce?

A. — No. Her entitlement to all benefits ceases when your divorce is final.

Presented as a public service and open to any interested person, the "Heart-saver" course provides information on such areas as the signs of a heart attack, basic emergency cardiac procedures, risk factors that can lead to heart disease, one-person CPR for adults, and how to aid a choking person.

The session is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Lahey Clinic Medical Center's Alumni Auditorium.

Interested persons are asked to register by January 27 by calling 273-8733. A $4 fee will be charged to cover the cost of materials.

CHARISMA INSTITUTE

During the month of January, Charisma Institute will be accepting applications from persons wishing to be admitted as students for the Spring Quarter beginning March 6, 1984.

Charisma Institute at St. Francis Seminary, 459 River Road in Andover is an educational program. Its orientation is Franciscan. By the word "Charisma" the Institute emphasizes the nuances of meaning of "Leadership" by educational methods which are somewhat conservative but in keeping with updated professional techniques.

The primary purpose of The Charisma

Institute — not to be confused with the Charismatic prayer group which used the Christian Formation Center — is to educate mature persons in the relationship of the individual to GOD, and on this basis, to his or her family, profession, community, church, and government. These six areas constitute the six clusters of required, core courses. Furthermore, students may choose from a variety of related, elective courses to complete the program. The total program is a well-integrated and complete package of one-hundred hours of instruction.

The Institute will be accepting no more than one-hundred students for its Spring Quarter. Admissions to the program will be on a rolling basis, "first come first serve." Each applicant will be interviewed in order to determine whether he or she will gain from being enrolled at Charisma Institute.

To apply for admission to the program, write to Charisma Institute, P.O. Box 263, Andover, Mass. 01810 or call 851-7910.

DOLL HOUSE

The special exhibit at the Wenham Museum now through January 31 is "Doll House Fantasies — Then and Now." Over 45 houses, shops, and miniature rooms are on display Monday-Saturday, 1-4 p.m., and Sunday, 2-5 p.m. They run the gamut from the 1870 Crane House and an 1890 parlor and bedroom through houses of the 1920's to creations of the modern miniaturist and houses built and enjoyed by today's children.

A special feature of the exhibit will be Doll House Day for Collectors on Saturday, January 14, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Lorna Lieberman, Curator of Dolls at the Wenham Museum, has arranged a full day of activities, the highlight of which will be a slide presentation by John Noble, Curator of Toys at the Museum of the City of New York. There will also be four workshop-discussion groups, both morning and afternoon, led by Melville Davey, Herbert Hosmer, Linda Prescott, and Dolores Rawding. After a gourmet lunch served by the Friends of Wenham Museum, Anne Timpson will give appraisals of antique miniatures or photos of old dolls' houses (up to three per person), and Jan Burton will narrate a slide program on Noel Thomas Doll Houses. Attendance is by reservation only, and there are a limited number of spaces still available. The fee of $15.00 (Museum members, $12.50) covers all the day's events.

The Museum is located at 132 Main Street (Route 1A), Wenham, Ma. (Exit 20N off Route 128). Regular admission is $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children 6-14. For further information and reservations for Doll House Day or group visits, call (617) 468-2377.

SELF-CARE
Reginald D. Rice, M.D., new Chief of Staff at New England Memorial Hospital will speak on "How to be Your Own Doctor" on Thursday, January 19. The lecture will be held in the hospital auditorium at 7:00 p.m. With his experience in Family Practice, using a holistic approach to treat patients within the context of their homes and family relationships, Dr. Rice is well qualified to discuss the subject of self-care. There are many instances in which a home remedy will work to make a sick person well and an expensive office visit can be avoided. Dr. Rice will discuss these as well as situations in which an individual should seek medical help. He will cover the physical symptoms that are serious and those that may not be, what home remedies and over-the-counter medications are most effective and what type of information you should share with your physician over the phone. With the cold and flu season upon us, Dr. Rice will give some timely advice on treating these common annoying illnesses. There will be time for questions and answers and a $2 admission will be received at the door. This lecture is one of a series of NEMH physicians. For more information contact the Health Education department at 665-1740, ext. 426.

Woodchips

Water is one of our most valued utilities. In a pinch we can substitute or do without gas or oil. Portable generators can supply us with electricity but we can't get along very well without "water." Ron Ganley of Burlington works for the Town of Burlington Water Department. It is men like Ron in every city or town who are dedicated to the task of installing and maintaining the pipe lines and also testing periodically the water supply to insure that it is in top-notch quality.

While studying biology at Rome's famous "Whata's matta U" the professor told the students that humans are made up of 95% water. While on recess that day, a young, beautiful Italian Sophia Loren type young lady walked across the campus green. My classmate Angelo exclaimed, "Mama Mia, look what she has done with her 5%!"

I spoke to Donna Monahan, a Stoneham Independent (five foot two, eyes of blue) reporter who told me she likes reading Woodchips that appear in that newspaper. Thanks Donna.

Charlie Sweeney, a retired state trooper and next door neighbor of mine, has received the "Man of the Year" award from Margaret Heckler for working as a volunteer in the child abuse cases of the Boston courts. What a beautiful sight to see a six foot six John Wayne type of a man cradle one of those little angels (who have been so cruelly treated) in his arms. Charlie has plenty of experience with children, he and his lovely wife Charlotte had six of their own.

My Aunt Maria of Wilmington is a compulsive buyer. She attends auctions, goes to flea markets and every yard sale in the area. Most of the things she buys turn out to be "collector's items." You can see them if you like — every Tuesday morning just before the rubbish truck gets there. She bought a "Grandfather's clock," and she hasn't got a grandfather — bought a small "pipe organ," and gave it to a neighbor, Bob Misiano, a "plumber." She bought a mafia car that came with two "hoods" and a mohair chair for a bald headed cousin of ours — there is one thing she won't part with and that is a "coffee table" because it "perks her up."

My wife said to me last night, "A blind man is at the door." I responded, "Give the poor man a couple of dollars." "But he wants $89 for four shades and two venetian blinds."

David Cunningham is the grandson of Ethel Gaw of Reading. David is a chemist who we hope will find a "solution" to at least one of the many of the world's problems. My Uncle John said, "Woodchipper, put in your column that my secret of long life is my eating garlic every day." From about twenty feet away I asked him, "Why do you refer to it as a secret?"

A person must be at least 35 years old to be president of the United States, that's why we may never have a woman president. There are not too many woman who will admit to being 35 years old. My Aunt Maria said, "Why don't you put all your Woodchip columns in a book, then burn it?"

Marianne and Fred Ezekiel of Tewksbury visited the Egyptian Room at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Noticing a mummy isolated from the others in the exhibit they inquired of the caretaker, "Why?" "Oh!" he exclaimed "that one got a 'burn wrap'."

Michael Kravchuk of Lynnfield told me that the Idaho Potato Growers Assoc. refused to invite Walter Cronkite to speak at their annual convention, because Walter is a "common tater."

Gail Costello has recently passed the bar and is an attorney. Now I ask you folks, how can a member of a jury be impartial when a "beautiful" young lady attorney sums up a case for her client? I remember not too long ago when a judge said to me, "I've seen you before, you look very familiar, have you ever been up before me?" "I don't know your honor," I replied, "What time do you get up?" (I got away with that answer because the man had a sense of humor.)

In the early 1940s my cousin Peggy Walsh entered a cloistered order of nuns whose strict rules permitted only two spoken words every ten years. Peggy's first words were "Cell cold." (A room is called a cell.) After ten more years she said "Food bad!" The Mother Superior entered them in the log as she did with the other complaint and shunted it aside. As the years rolled by her anger increased and rose to a torturous crescendo as she awaited the opportunity to almost yell out her last two words, "I quit!!!" "Good," said the Mother Superior, "you've been a 'chronic complainer' anyway."

Christopher Giannino of Wilmington asked me after attending Christmas Mass, "Why is it that every time I go to church it is overflowing with either lilies or poinsettias?"

I went into Woburn Supply and asked the handsome young clerk for ten pounds of nails. He smiled and asked, "How long do you want them?" "Oh," I replied, "I would like to keep them, I'm building an addition to my house." Received a card from Margie Lynn Stratton of North Reading with this beautiful line, "Friendship, like stars reflect past and future happiness, hoping that your friendship and Woodchips never ends."

Don't be surprised if the driver of the taxi you just entered is a college student working part time; they are kind, considerate and don't drive around the world on a "short cut." Bob Pacy of Town Taxi, Stoneham, has many of these gentlemen working for him. I went to New York last week and asked the cab driver to take me to "333 Lexington Ave." He turned and said, "You mean, Tree Hunert Thoity Tree, Lexington Ave. — youse people from Boston sure Moilder the Mutter tongue."

Charlene McCurtin of Wilmington is home and thanks all who sent her cards at the hospital. The Immaculate Conception basketball team is waiting for you to help win those games again. So come back real soon.

THE LONELY TREE

By ANTHONY MANCONI

I look out through my window pane, this cold winter morn and see the snow that fell all night, until the early dawn. Where once the rambling waves of grain, bountifully did grow, now nature's sown its winter crop, of glistening white snow.

A lonely tree on a hill, looks on the scene below. It has withstood the stormy night, bending to and fro. Its lofty arms like sentinels, outstretched up towards the sky, inviting birds to rest awhile, instead of flying by.

Oh stately tree you're not alone, no reason to feel blue, the Guardian of the universe is standing there with you. Today as when time began, His outstretched arms implore, to tell us that He stands with us and will for evermore.

The Board of Trustees of the North Shore Health Planning Council (NSHPC) has established an Ad-Hoc Medicaid Ob-Gyn Task Force to work with the Essex County Community Organization on a fact finding effort and exploration of options for low-income people. The Essex County Community Organization is an advocacy group which has been involved with the issue of accessibility of medical care to low income people for several months.

The January 25th public meeting is intended as an opportunity for physicians, hospital representatives and Medicaid recipients to voice their concern and give their advice. The NSHPC believes this to be a complex problem requiring review from a number of different perspectives.

The North Shore Health Planning Council is a community based organization working to improve health care and control costs on the North Shore.

"Black Ice" dangerous

"Black ice and frosty bridges" are a couple of things early-morning drivers should watch out for this time of year.

"Black ice occurs when water along the roadsides or from melting snow flows across the highway and freezes in a thin sheet before morning," said Caroline J. Hymoff, Manager of Safety Services for AAA Massachusetts. "Often it's hard to see this 'ice' until you're nearly on top of it. Sometimes it fools you because it looks like water."

"Bridges tend to accumulate frost and ice whenever temperatures go down at night."

Review

Hitchcock classic is great entertainment

By DAN KENNEDY

One of the hottest movie tickets around right now is for a film that features no sex, very little violence and is nearly 30 years old. That hardly sounds like a formula for success, but the first time I tried to see it, I was confronted with a 100-yard-long line, and the second time, I was seated just minutes before it sold out.

The movie is one of Alfred Hitchcock's more obscure films, "Rear Window," starring Jimmy Stewart and Grace Kelly. Made in the early 1950s, it disappeared for many years — seen neither in theaters nor on television — before resurfacing several months ago.

"Rear Window" is a little different from the standard

Hitchcock fare — in some ways it might even be said to be experimental. Unlike classics such as "Psycho," "Dial M for Murder" and "The Birds," "Rear Window" features very little physical action. Rather, the action takes place in the mind. As a result, the movie tends to be a little bit tedious at times, which may be one reason why it was out of circulation for so long. Nevertheless, the plot and the acting are so outstanding that "Rear Window" stands head and shoulders above most modern movies.

Stewart plays a world-traveling photographer confined to his apartment for six weeks because of a broken leg suffered while shooting an auto race. From his apartment, in a run-down section of New York City, he observes his neighbors and becomes fascinated with their lives — thus the title of the movie. Kelly plays his girlfriend and Raymond Burr portrays a mysterious neighbor.

Stewart and Kelly think Burr murdered his wife, while Stewart's friend on the New York Police Department thinks Burr is perfectly innocent. For most of the movie, the viewer doesn't know what to think, because Hitchcock is careful not to let you have any more information than Stewart and Kelly have — which isn't much.

Hitchcock never lets you see or hear anything that Stewart can't see or hear — in fact, the camera never even leaves the room to which he is confined except for a short time at the very end. The technique shows Hitchcock to be a master of storytelling.

The performances are all excellent. Stewart is at his folksy best, and his complicated relationship with Kelly is both convincing and a little sad. Kelly was never a great actress, but Hitchcock doesn't give her any more to do than she can handle. Burr, despite being in front of the camera for a considerable length of time, has only two or three speaking lines. His silence adds to the air of mystery about him. Supporting actors and actresses also turn in a fine job.

If you put "Rear Window" at the top of your list of movies to see, you won't be disappointed. Your biggest problem will be in finding it. Currently it is playing at small theaters in Boston and Newton, and it has also been shown in Cambridge. So keep your eyes open, get there early and enjoy one of the best new-old movies around today.

Spotlighters seek talent for new cabaret season

Gotta Dance! Gotta Sing!

If those phrases strike a familiar chord in your soul, then you should audition for the new season of the Silver Lake Spotlighters' Touring Company.

This cabaret-style company of approximately 20 talented singers and dancers has entertained hundreds of audiences throughout eastern Massachusetts with their superb vocal stylings and dance numbers. Their new season begins March 16th with a show featuring the tunes of the 1930s and 1940s that will include such numbers as "Chatanooga Choo Choo," "42nd Street,"

"It Don't Mean A Thing (If It Ain't Got That Swing)." Auditions for the Touring Company will be held Tuesday, January 24th, at 7:30 p.m. in the Spotlighters' rehearsal space at the Abundant Life Christian School, Boutwell Street (off Route 62) in Wilmington.

Please be prepared to dance and have ready one up tempo and one ballad number (1930s or 1940s music if possible). Bring the sheet music with you; an accompanist will be provided.

If you have any questions about the audition, please call the director, Jim Lodico, in Salem, at 745-3998.

TV workshops on writing

computers at Salem State

Writer's processing, computer Workshop" and "The hardware and software, and development of new literacy: An introduction to computers" will be featured television workshops sponsored by Salem State College. The course is starting in January designed to provide a comprehensive overview of the computer: what it is, what it can and cannot do, how it operates, how it may be involved in solving problems, what terminology it uses, and how it can be applied to a broad range of settings and uses. The series involves 26 half-hour programs.

Both television writers, book lovers, and others interested in writing, feature Kurt Vonnegut, Nora Ephron, Tom Wolfe, Pauline Kael, John Gardner, John Irving, Stephen Spender, George Prilimpton, Susan Sontag, James McPherson, William Price, and William Price Fox. Discussions will cover fiction, non-fiction, and poetry. Registration details may be obtained from the Division of Graduate and Continuing Education, Room 102, Sullivan Building, Salem State College, Salem, MA 01970, telephone 745-0556, ext. 2315.

There are many service organizations who retain accredited representatives to assist in presenting claims before the VA. A power of attorney would authorize one of those organizations to act in your behalf for your claim.

Questions: I have a disability claim pending with the Veterans Administration. I have been told to sign a power of attorney. What does that mean?

Health tips for new parents

Lifting your baby

By JUDITH T. MYERS

These are some of the things medical experts recommend you do to protect your lower back from injury.

- lift with your back straight
- use the muscles in your thighs to do the work
- keep the weight of what you're lifting close to your body
- try not to carry anything higher than waist-level
- never twist and lift
- avoid sharp, sudden movements

Now try to imagine yourself adhering to these recommendations as you care for your baby or toddler. It's hard. Cribs, playpens, high chairs, carseats, bathtubs, and toddlers themselves seem inherently designed to wreck havoc on moms' and dads' backs. With a little forethought, though, you can avoid back problems.

According to Patricia A. Cabral of Stoneham, a physical therapist with nine years' experience who currently works at the Harvard Community Health Plan in Medford, "poor body mechanics" are at the root of lower back troubles. The body is put in an anatomically incorrect position, or there is sudden, sharp movement, or both.

What actually has happened when a person experiences lower back pain? Usually, Pat explains, the problems is muscular. The discomfort commonly is felt as a dull ache that comes on gradually. Quite simply, the small muscles of the back have been required to perform in a way they're not used to.

If corrective steps aren't taken, a muscular problem can develop into a disc problem. The disc is impinged upon in one of several ways: two vertebrae may be out of alignment, nearby muscles may have swollen and are pressing on the disc, or fluid from muscular inflammation may put pressure on the disc.

Disc problems can degenerate into problems marked by neurological symptoms: shooting pain down the leg (sciatica), tingling in the legs, or numbness in the lower extremities. There may be spasms of the lower back muscles as the afflicted person tenses up in response to pain:

One of the most serious conditions that can result from back injury is loss of function of the or lower extremities when the nerves in the spine that control these areas are damaged.

In women, pregnancy can set the stage for back problems after the baby is born. The weight of the fetus in utero causes more of an arch in the mother's back, plus stretched abdominal muscles can become weakened, causing the lower back muscles to work overtime. Pat stresses that it's very beneficial for pregnant women to practice back and abdominal exercises throughout their pregnancies.

And, let's face it, the older a woman — or a man — is when caring for little children, the less able his or her back is to withstand abuse.

People who have tight hamstrings, either because they were born that way or because of exercise (especially runners), also can set themselves up for back problems as the muscles in the backs of their thighs accentuate the arch of the back. Other general habits harmful to the back are slouching while standing, walking, and sitting; lifting incorrectly; sleeping on soft mattresses and sleeping on the abdomen; driving a car with the seat set far back and the legs extended almost straight; and work that requires long periods of standing.

Pat herself the mother of a 17-month-old daughter, points out that with toddlers there are going to be times when you have no choice but to be quick. If your child is about to take a tumble down a flight of stairs, you don't have time to consider how to use your thigh muscles while slowly reaching out to grab him or her. In most child care situations, though, there's time for the right way over the wrong. Let's consider:

Cribs and playpens: Don't bend from the waist to lift out your child. Rather, if your crib or playpen has sides that drop, lower one. Then squat as deeply as you need to in order to reach the child. Bring the child as close to the side as possible before lifting. Keep your back straight and lift with the thighs. If the sides of your crib or playpen do not drop, do the best you can by bringing the child close to you and bending your knees. It's always easier to lift a child if he or she will stand up.

High chairs: Avoid swinging the child up in an arc, from floor to chair, while your back is bent at the waist. Squat near the child, lift, hold him or her close to your body, then place the child in the chair.

Carseats: To place a baby in a carseat requires that you bend at the waist, lean forward, hold a heavy weight some distance from your body, and twist while you're lifting. Two-door cars make the task harder. To make the best of a bad situation, keep the child as close to you as you can for as long as you can, place a leg inside the car and use it to lean on, twist as little as possible, and above all — go slowly.

Bathtubs: Moms' and dads' backs often are put under new stress when the child becomes large enough that plastic tubs placed on tabletops or counters no longer suffice. Bathing in the regular bathtub means contending with the side of the tub while working from the floor. Try placing a towel on the side of the tub, then leaning against this at mid-chest-level. Not only does this take the strain off the small back muscles, it also leaves both arms free.

Carrying children: Keep your own back straight, abdominal muscles pulled in, and pelvis tilted backward as you carry a baby or toddler. Hold him or her close in, at about waist height. With small babies, there's often a tendency to hold the infant up against one of your shoulders. It's better for your back to cradle the infant in your arms, which are held near your waist.

When you must hold a toddler for a long period of time, the best place is on your hip. But don't thrust the hip out so far that your spine is curved sideways, and do switch the child from hip to hip periodically. Carrying a toddler sitting on your shoulders isn't a wise idea, either, because the child can and probably will shift about suddenly and often, and because you are subjecting your backbone to 20 or more pounds of strictly downward pressure.

New walkers: When helping a toddler who's just learning to walk, parents often will bend forward at the waist and extend their arms in front of them, which the child reaches up to grasp. It's better to walk the child at your side (keeping yourself as straight as you can), but if that won't work, at least don't keep the child toddling in front of you for long periods of time.

One of the best things you can do for your back is to strengthen your abdominal muscles. Strong abdominal muscles will minimize sway backs and pot bellies and will help keep the pelvis tilted backward. Doing curl-ups (not sit-ups) on the floor — 25 a day is a good way to accomplish this. Standing with your back against a wall and pushing the small of your back and the back of your neck against the wall, with knees slightly bent, will help you to "feel" good posture. Or, lie on the floor with knees bent and hands clasped behind your head, feet flat on the floor. Press the small of your back toward the floor and hold five seconds. Relax, take a deep breath, and repeat. Stretching exercises for the hamstrings also are beneficial.

As you care for your child, whenever possible use aids that will relieve your muscles. Rest your elbow on the arm of a chair to bottle or breastfeed an infant. Use a stroller instead of carrying your child. Cloth sling carriers and backpacks are fine when used and adjusted properly, and with tiny tots, but can cause problems with older, heavier children whose weights can shift about suddenly. Wear shoes with low heels.

In summary, practice good body mechanics in all you do, keep your abdominal muscles toned up, and do your child-toting with your thigh muscles and a straight back. Then console yourself with the thought that back problems are the price we pay for the privilege of walking upright, on only two legs, with our hands free.

The right way to carry a child: Pat Cabral's back is straight and she holds the child at waist-level and close to her body. The wrong way: Pat's back is twisted and bent backwards; the weight of the child, held shoulder-high, worsens the effects of twisting and bending.

The right approach to a stroller ride: Par squats, keeping her back straight, as she lifts the child into or out of the stroller. The wrong approach: Pat's lower back will be strained as she bends at the waist while holding the child away from her body.

Put your best foot forward

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

The outdoors still beckons with the best snow conditions in a long time. Wax up your cross-country skis and take in the beauty and enjoyment of a gentle downhill slope.

I recently discovered a very good cross-country ski area nearby on the Winchester-Medford line. The woods around the Winchester Reservoir, located between the Fellsway, Rt.

28 in Medford and South Border Rd. in Winchester satisfy perfectly the demand for a scenic ski delight coupled with good trails. The 3.6 miles of trails are rated at minimal difficulty and the number of people who use this area make it just right for track skiing. The biggest problem is parking if you are not a nearby Winchester resident. There are two small areas on South Border Rd. (parking is not permitted on the roadway). On the Medford side, there is parking on the Fellsway, but you have to ski into the Reservoir area from a half-a-mile away.

Another cross-country ski area that caught my attention is a little further away from home. I tried out Hale Reservation, located off Rt. 109 in Westwood. Hale boasts of 6.5 miles of trails with a rating of moderate difficulty. I found the going a little rougher than around Winchester Reservoir, but I place some blame on my inability to choose the right wax on the day I was there. I liked the area and what I toured. Hale charges a modest fee for their well-maintained system of groomed trails.

Basic Boating

The Gloucester Power Squadron, a unit of the U.S. Power Squadrons, will conduct a course in Basic Boating at the Stoneham High School, 149 Franklin St., Stoneham, beginning Monday, Jan. 30 at 7:30 PM. Registration is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 23 from 7 to 9 PM at the same location (bad weather date Jan. 27).

The Course, which will run for ten weeks, will be keyed to safe boating practices and will cover such topics as handling a boat under both normal and adverse conditions, seamanship and common emergencies, rules of the road, aids to navigation, compass and chart familiarization, running lights and equipment, boat trailering, river boating, and piloting by compass.

In addition to the lectures, the students will be drilled in plotting courses, establishing a fix by cross-bearings, and calculating speed-distance-time problems. Total cost to the student is $12 for course materials.

Fishing Museum activities

The Gloucester Fisherman's Museum, located at the corner of Rogers and Porter Streets, in Gloucester is featuring two months of ever-changing activities for families. Every weekend children will make a different marine craft item to take home. Jan. 21 - 22 whale mobile; Jan. 28-29 paddleboats; Feb. 4-5 sea serpent painting; Feb. 11-12 fish filleting; Feb. 18-19 whale walk; Feb. 25-26 beach combing. Adults will see ever changing movies of old Gloucester and some never-before-seen movies of fishing trips, while enjoying a cup of Snow's hot sea food chowder.

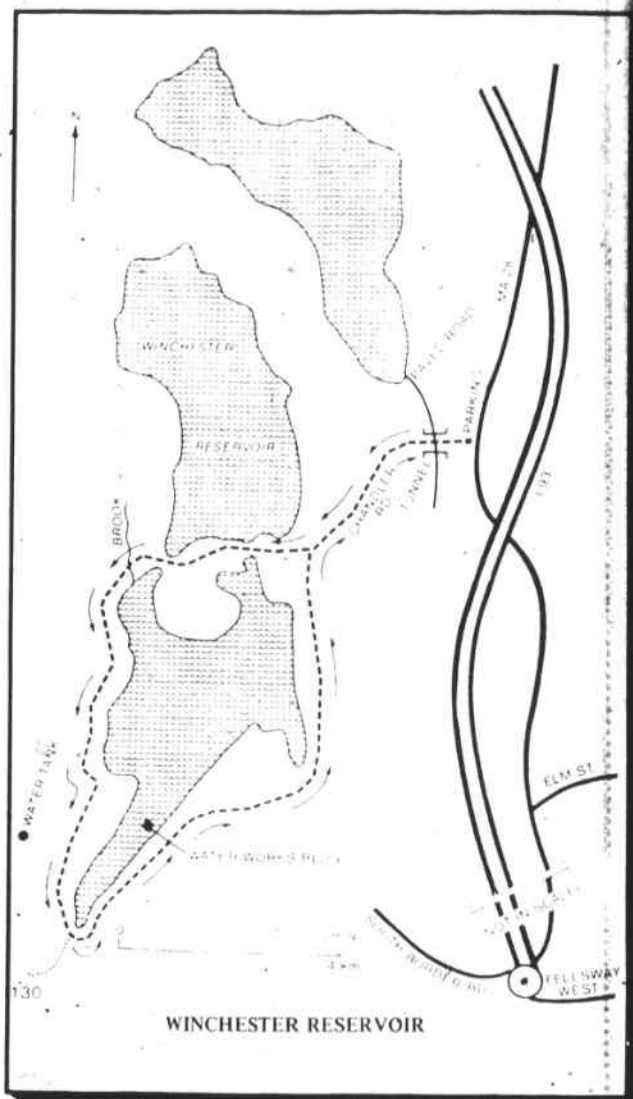

The hours of the Museum are 10 AM to 4 PM, Monday through Saturday, Sunday 12:30 PM to 4 PM. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children. There are also family and senior citizen reductions.

Plan for next spring

Now is the time to plan your landscaping and gardening needs according to Kathleen Carroll of the Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service. The 1984 Garden calendar can guide any home gardener with tips on when to plant, daily gardening tips and pest control.

For a calendar, send $1.50 payable to Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service, Cottage A, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003.

From the snow to the spring, from Stoneham boating to Gloucester fishing, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. But if we missed an event of interest to all, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. We are willing to travel both near and far.
